

Valley Towing Products Adds Two New Facilities in North America

Rochester, MI - Valley Towing Products, a Revstone Company, announced today the addition of two new facilities to its North American supply chain, including a new warehouse in Dallas, TX and a new manufacturing facility in San Luis Potosi, Mexico. These facilities will join Valley's warehouse and distribution facilities in Columbus, OH and Lodi, CA. Valley plans to close its current manufacturing facility in Lodi, CA by the end of May.

"We are excited to build on Valley's growing momentum with the addition of these two new state-of-the-art facilities," said Bob LaCourciere, President of Revstone's Performance Manufacturing Technologies Group (RPM-Tec), which includes Valley Towing Products. "The organizational changes announced today are designed to ensure Valley customers will continue to receive new and innovative products that maximize customer value. By integrating new technologies and right-sizing our operations, we will be well-positioned to do that."
